The Center shall . . . collect, collete, and, from time to time, report full and complete statistics on the conditions of education in the United States; conduct and publish reports on specialized analyses of the meaning and significance of such statistics; , . . and review and report on education activities in foreign countries."—Section 406(b) of the Gaussal Education Provisions Act, as amended {20 U.S.C. 1221e-1}.

FOREWORD

he 1981-82 edition of the Education Directory, Colleges and Universities lists those institutions in the United States and utlying areas that are legally authorized to offer and are offering at least a one-year program of college-level studies leadi oward a degree. Specific requirements and criteria for listing in this Directory are stated in detail in the Introduction.

he information presented for each institution includes its area code and telephone number, address (including ZIP cod ongressional district and county in which it is located, FICE code number, entity number, date established, fall 1980 enro nent, undergraduate tuition and fees, sex of student body (men, women, coed, or coordinate), calendar system, conti by each State, but institutions of higher education operate with considerable autonomy and self-governance. Therefore, U.S. educational institutions vary widely in the character and quality of their programs. A unique feature of U.S. educational practice is the process known as accreditation, which includes self-study by an educational institution, coupled with peer evaluation of schools and programs. This process operates through nationally recognized accrediting agencies and associations and certain State bodies. These agencies have adopted criteria reflecting the qualities of a sound educational program and they have developed procedures for evaluating institutions or programs to determine whether or not
